Welcome

Welcome to Andy Hymel's School of Music. Our goal is to educate and develop self-discipline and self-confidence in our students. Studies have shown the positive effects of learning music often results in better school grades, social skills, and comprehensive thinking. We strongly feel that what we do with music education can change lives for the better.

Our staff has over 175 years of combined teaching experience. Many of our students, have received scholarships to various colleges of music. In addition, the school has students regularly accepted into NOCCA (New Orleans Center for Creative Arts). Currently, many of our former students earn their living as band directors, professional teachers, and performers all around the country.

General Information

Andy Hymel's School of Music offers a safe environment for students to learn. All of our classrooms are equipped with a full-view door for comfort and visibility.

We welcome prospective students and parents to come by to experience what our school has to offer. We know you will be satisfied with our professionalism and passion to teach music.

We provide regular performance opportunities for our students that will help develop their skills and confidence.

Ensemble Class (Group Combo)

Students learn how to play in a band. Guided by one of our teachers, this class is a great way to speed up student's goals of playing in a band!

Me and My Music is our early learning music program.

The benefits of music for children include: learning cooperation, creativity, concentration, and listening.

These skills become invaluable as they enter school, face new challenges, begin to form new friendships and develop social skills. Students can begin as young as 18 months old.
